ActionAid Denmark

Who we are:

Our organisation was established in 1944, under the name Mellempfolkeligt Samvirke (Danish Association for International Co-operation), today called ActionAid Denmark. Our aim is to further international understanding and solidarity across and beyond national and cultural boundaries. We do this by trying to influence development on every level from grassroots to government. The International Exchange programme of ActionAid Denmark is called Global Contact and provides opportunities for everyone to get an insight into other cultures. Our programme consists of activities and partnerships in most parts of the world. Our aim is to facilitate understanding of other cultures, political systems, religions and geographical conditions. We hope that our volunteers will make use of their experience and knowledge to further social and economic equality. Our programme makes it possible for people from all over the world to live and work together on an equal basis, to work with locals and assist in solving problems in society at large.

What we do:

ActionAid Denmark has been organising work camps in Denmark for more than 30 years. The work camps are hosted and sponsored by Danish municipalities, regions, institutions, private and public funding etc. ActionAid Denmark's International work camps offer volunteers a practical and social task, which will benefit a local community. Our main objective is to get people from different countries, cultures, religions and backgrounds to work and function together, and through that to learn from and about each other: A great way to break down prejudices and stereotypes.
